STATE BANK OF India (SBI) may reach its goal of a ₹4-trillion loan book for the SME segment by March this year, instead of the earlier timeline of March 2024 set by the bank, chairman Dinesh Khara said in an analyst call.

Several initiatives over the past year have aided in an accelerated growth in the segment, he said.

"We have set a target of reaching ₹4 trillion by March 2024, but the way things are, we should be very near to that by March 2023," Khara said. The SME book of the bank grew 14.2%Y-o-Y to ₹3.51 trillion as of December 31, consisting of 11% of the total loan book.

The bank has invested in terms of structures and capacity building with a focus on distribution finance and vendor finance balance sheet-based lending. SBI has also rolled out pre-approved business loans through Yono which are issued by analysing the transactions in current account of the borrower. This product is becoming very popular, Khara said.

"SME lending has become a are mindful of our quality of power and product, due to

NEW TAX SYSTEM

HDFC Life confident of lowering impact on APE

MITHUN DASGUPTA Kolkata, February 5

PRIVATE SECTOR INSURER HDFC Life Insurance believes that accelerating the pace of deeper penetration into tier-II and III cities and its ongoing strategy of diversifying product portfolio will help it mitigate the impact of taxation on income from highticket non-linked life insurance products.

Life insurance companies are expected to take a hit as the government in its Budget presented last week proposed to tax income from all non-ULIP products, ie par and non-par, where aggregate insurance premium paid in a year exceeds ₹5 lakh.

"If we don't do anything, the hit could be around 10-12% of the total APE (annual premium equivalent). But obviously, we intend to do a lot of things to prevent that. So, when we will do all of that, the impact will be in the mid-single digit," HDFC Life Insurance chief financial officer Niraj Shah told FE.

"We are confident of lowering the impact of the new taxation on APE, and thus, impact of VNB (value of new business) will also be lower, almost negligible. There would not be any impact on VNB margin," Shah said. In a stock exchange filing last Friday, the company said, "Our initial assessment indicates that the business at risk could be approximately 10-12% of the total APE and impact on value of new business would be lower than impact on total APE. We will be working on mitigating measures to deal with the impact in due course".

"The impact of VNB will be lower because for the policies with larger ticket sizes customers prefer a lower premium payment term like 5-7 years. So, everything else remaining the same, as the policies of larger ticket sizes have shorter policy tenure, the hit on the margins will be lower relative to the policies of larger tenure with lower ticket sizes," Shah explained.

JM Financial Institutional Securities, in a note, has said, "While protection segment will not be impacted (due to the tax), we expect non-par products will be impacted the most, given the higher ticket sizes."

According to HDFC Life Insurance, it will accelerate its process of deeper penetration into tier-II and III cities as it will help the insurer reach more customers who will have policies with different ticket sizes. Moreover, the company will continue accelerating protection and annuity business in order to further diversify its product portfolio across different product segments.

beyond," he said.

"We are expanding rapidly into tier-II and tier-III towns. All our new distribution part ners, India Post Payments Bank and AU Small Finance Banks, are largely operating in tier II, III cities, and

"Our acquisition of Exide Life was primarily for the tier II and III agency markets. So, we are broadbasing our business across customer segments and across geographies. Now, we will accelerate the process. It will help us reach more customers who will have policies with different ticket sizes. Alot of these will be lower ticket sizes, thus, we will be able to expand business into areas beyond the segments where there could be a tax impact," Shah pointed out.
